

Nurses Day Celebration

On 12th May 2023, the Department of Nursing under the Faculty of Nursing organized a vibrant celebration of Nurses Day at the departmental level. The event, themed around recognizing the invaluable contributions of nurses to society, witnessed active participation from around 200 attendees, including students, faculty members, and dignitaries. Graced by the esteemed presence of the Pro Chancellor, the event was a platform to honor the dedication, compassion, and tireless efforts of nurses in healthcare delivery. Convened by Mrs. Monika and co-convened by Mrs. Kavita, the celebration was a resounding success in fostering a deeper appreciation for the nursing profession.

The program began with a warm welcome address by Mrs. Monika, highlighting the crucial role of nurses in advancing health and well-being. The Pro Chancellor delivered an inspiring keynote speech, shedding light on the challenges faced by nurses and their unwavering commitment to patient care. Interactive sessions followed, offering participants an opportunity to discuss the evolving role of nursing in modern healthcare. Through engaging activities and discussions, the event highlighted the importance of skill development, empathy, and leadership in the nursing profession. The co-conveners ensured seamless coordination, enabling an enriching experience for all attendees.

The Nurses Day celebration emphasized the profound impact of the nursing profession on society. Nurses are at the forefront of healthcare, serving as caregivers, educators, and advocates for patients. This event was not only a tribute to their contributions but also a call to action for society to support and empower nursing professionals. By aligning with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), particularly SDG 3 (Good Health and Well-Being), SDG 4 (Quality Education), and SDG 5 (Gender Equality), the event underscored the critical role of nursing in achieving global health targets. Nurses are integral to building resilient healthcare systems, promoting health equity, and ensuring accessible care for all, particularly in underserved communities.

The event drew the enthusiastic involvement of 200 participants, including students, faculty, and esteemed guests. It served as a platform for knowledge-sharing, networking, and celebrating the contributions of nursing professionals. Participants left inspired and motivated to further their efforts in advancing the nursing profession. The celebration also reinforced the Department of Nursing's commitment to fostering excellence and leadership in healthcare.

The Nurses Day celebration at the Faculty of Nursing was a heartfelt tribute to the dedication and resilience of nurses. By acknowledging their vital role in society and connecting their contributions to the broader goals of sustainable development, the event highlighted the need for collective efforts to support and empower the nursing community. This celebration was a testament to the Department's unwavering commitment to promoting health, education, and societal well-being through the nursing profession.
